SCANDAL CUT DOWN MUTUAL LIFE BUSINESS.

The widespread effect of the expo-sure of scandal in the big life insurance companies was emphasized in the report of the Mutual Lafe for 1905, issued to-day, which shows a loss of $47.869,787 in new business written. This is a little less than the New York Life lost in the same period, in new business, and a great deal less than the loss in business suffered by the Equitable, which amounted to $80,000,000 The revelations concerning the Mutual and New York Life, however, came months later than those as to the

(Special to The Evening World.)
ALBANY, March 8.—Senator Thomas Grady, the Tammany leader of The upper house, served notice to-day that he will oppose the passage of the bill reported by the Armstrong Committee repealing section 56 of the Insurance law, which compels the consent of the Attorney-General to act against com-

This is the first move made by a member of the Legislature in the coming fight against the ten Armstrong bills, which will be opened to-morrow when the Insurance Committee of the Assembly will grant a hearing on all the measures.

The committees will meet to-night to arrange details of the hearing at which more than fifty representatives of insurance companies will appear Members of the Legislature who isually go home on Thursday will remain here for the hearing.

Insurance men are gathering from near and far. There are five life underwriters' associations in the State, with headquarters at New York, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse and Newburg, These have united for the fight against those portions of the bills that are objectionable to them, and have established themselves with headquarters at

The husband's side of the litigation is explained in part by his counsel, H. G. hackus. McQuade says ne lived happiny with his wife at their handsome mansion in Nyack at the rate of yifour a year, unto his sisterial with moved in. Trouble started right away, mcQuade came home one high of the word in the was the one who got out, but first there was a sprightly exchange or repartee in which a head, and another article of virtu, employed in canna bowl hit him on the head, and another actice of virtu, employed in lieu of a vocal actort, broke several of his ribs. The sister-in-law also had him arrested for assault and battery. Mrs. Mcguade, so her husband suys, sold the Nyack home for $85,000, and the contents, valued at $30,000, for a considerable sum. By the terms of a trust deed of his property, drawn in 180, he claims she receives the bulk of the available income, while he gets only $200 a month for his personal uses. Nevertheless, she craves alimony, and it is against her attempt to source it leads to the land of the source of th
